

If you're being billed incorrectly, our services can help have the errors corrected leading to forward savings.

Our water bill data correction is a service directly associated to our water audit¹ and water bill validation² services and can lead to significant forward savings.

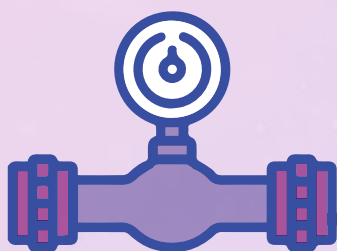

Without historical auditing of your water bills and especially since deregulation of the market, where a number of inconsistencies were introduced in to the market data, it's quite possible your organisation may be being billed incorrectly. These billing errors will continue to go unnoticed unless your bills are audited by someone with the correct experience, who knows exactly what to look for and what to check.

SwitchWaterSupplier.com has potentially unsurpassed experience in exactly this field, and quickly establish the accuracy of your water bills across your entire property portfolio and manage the process of applying for the data to be corrected and reclaiming any overcharges on your behalf.

Once corrected, you may think that your water bills should remain accurate forever more.

However, there are a number of factors that can lead to you paying more than you should, including, for example, corrections that have been agreed but are not later reflected in the bills, and also as a result of a lack of physical meter reads, or an undetected water leak. Our water bill validation service² continues to pay for itself and ensures you always only pay for the correct water and waste water volumes and realise any potential efficiencies.
